

INTRODUCTION

HANNAH UBL [Û - BULL] / (SHE/HER)

SHORT INTRO

I'm excited to introduce our speaker, Hannah Ubl. Hannah is co-founder of Good Company Consulting, and a sought-after communication and culture expert. Their company's mission is to help people create workplaces that don't suck.

Hannah and her business partner Lisa, co-authored Managing Millennials for Dummies, and are currently working on their next book, which takes a closer look at how the pandemic will forever change the way we work.

We're thrilled to have Hannah here to share their latest insights!

LONG INTRO

Everyone deserves a great place to work, so why do so many people get a sick feeling in their stomach before Monday mornings?

I'm excited to introduce today's speaker, Hannah Ubl. Hannah is a renowned communication and culture expert, and co-founder of Good Company Consulting. Her company's mission is to help organizations create workplaces that don't suck, and is motivated by the simple idea that the key to any great business is to put people first.

Hannah has been studying people at work for over a decade. She's traveled across the globe, working with organizations big and small to discover the secret sauce behind truly great companies. Through her research, she's curated best-practices from the world's most forward-thinking business.

A self-proclaimed research nerd, Hannah's been making her friends take surveys since the 4th grade. She's a published author whose insights have been featured in publications nationwide, and is currently working with her business partner on their next book about how the pandemic will forever change the way we work. We're thrilled to have her share some of those insights with us here today.

Please help me welcome Hannah Ubl!